BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
HISTORY OF TIPPECANOE COUNTY INDIANA

SAMPSON McDOLE, one of the selfmade men of Sheffield Township, who has been identified with the interests of Tippecanoe Co. many years, was born on the family home- stead in Ohio, October 29,1814, a son of John McDole. The latter was born in Lancaster Co.Pa. of Scotch descent, his father, John McDole being a native of Scotland. John McDole, the father of our subject, grew to manhood in his native country, where he mar- ried Miss Susan Caster, who was also a native of Lancaster Co. and to them were born five sons and three daughters all of whom married and reared families of their own. In the spring of 1814,a few years after their marriage, the parents removed with their family, then consisting of two sons, Conrad and John, to Richland Co., Ohio, where the father entered a new farm which he improved, and made it his home for many years. He finally sold his land in Ohio, and settled in Hamilton Co.,Ind. where he lived until his death in 1844. He was a soldier in the war of 1812. His widow survived him many years, and was a second time married to George Caster, who was over a hundred years old at the time of his death. The mother of our subject died at the advanced age of eighty-six years. Sampson McDole whose name heads this sketch, was early in life insured to hard work, and in his youth re- aceived but limited educational advantages, by attendence at the early log cabin schools a few months during the winter seasons. He began life a poor boy, working at whatever honest employment he could obtain. He first came to Tippecanoe Co., Ind., in 1830, and for a considerable time he engaged in teaming between Dayton and Chicago, and Dayton and Cincinnati, usually taking with him grain or lumber, and returning to Dayton with merchandise. Sometimes he met with misfortune, at one time losing his horses by disease which they contracted while on one of these trips to Chicago. By hard work and srtict frugality he saved his earnings until he had accumulated enough to purchase land, his first land being fourty acres in Hamilton Co. In 1841 he bought fourty acres of his present farm in Sheffeild Twp. this Co., and has gradually added to his real estate until he now has over 300 acres of fine land. Oct.19,1841, he was united in marriage to Miss. Elsie Holden, a daughter of Jonathan Whittleburry, one of the old and honored pioneers of Muskingum Co.,Ohio. They reared a family of ten children, of whom six sons are living; John Morgan, of Lauramie Twp.,Owen, of Clinton Co., Clinton of Lauramie Twp.; Peirce, of Sheffield Twp., Titellus, of Lauramie Twp., and Alba B., a graduate of LaFayette American Union Business College, and now a professor in the American normal college at Logansport, Indiana. Four daughters are deceased; Martha, Samantha, Freelove and Ida, all of whom were married but freelove, who died at the age eight years. Through deprived of education Mr. McDole ever realized its importance, and has given his children good opportunities for mental culture, and all are good scholars and useful members od society. Mr. McDole has in his homestead 183 acres of fine improved land, substantial brick residence and farm buildings, his residence being one of the best in his township, besides which he owns other valuable property in the Co. all being acquired by his own industry and good man agement. He is a prominent member of the Lauramie Missionary Baptist church, in which he holds the office of treasurer, and is one of its most liberal supporters, and was the largest contributor toward the building of their beautiful brick church. All of his family but two sons are also members and liberal supporters. In politics Mr. McDole is a democrat, casting his first presidential vote for Martin Van Buren in 1836. Mr.

McDole is a farmer by occupation, and is one of the most comptetent men at this trade to be found in the Co. He is one of the representative men of his Twp., ever forward in sustaining whatever inter prises are for the best interest of the community in which he has made his home for so many years.

The marriage of Jonathon Whitteberry and Rebecca Caffrey, who was born January 1, 1796, took place August 15,1818. Their elder daughter, Effie, became the wife of Augustus Kilgore,,, and the younger, Elsie, the wife of our subject.

Following are the names and dates of birth of the children born to Mr. and Mrs. McDole; John Morgan, October 10,1842; Owen, June 25,1844; Martha, August 25,1846; Samantha September 10,1849; Clinton, April 10, 1851; Pierce, February 8,1854' Vilas, May 8,1857; Ida E., July 6, 1860; Freelove, February 22,1863, and Abbie Burton, November 19,1865. The parents are members of the Baptist church, and have ever been active in advancing the cause of rightrousness. In politics Mr. McDole favors the democratic party, as did his father before him. During the past year Mr. McDole, who has been a true pioneer woman, able assisting her husband in all of his arduous labors, has been invalid, and the earnest sympathy of their extensive circle of friends is bestowed upon her. Many of their early acquaintances here, among the first settlers, have been called to their reward, and within a few years at best they expect the same summons, but they performed a noble work, and will leave to their children and to their childrens, children a heritage of honor and unblemished name and record, which are more desirable then welth. DEATH FOLLOWED TEN YEAR OLD BOY KICK

Little Fellow Was Playing Foot Ball With Companions While Enroute Home

PLAYMATES HORRIFIED

His Turn at Ball Was Last Movement Made by the Little Fellow

CORONER WAS CALLED

1-3-06

The playmates of little Ray Speigel, the ten year old son of James Speigel residing eight miles southwest of the city were horrified by the awful evidences of death while enroute home from school yesterday afternoon.

The boy, who lived with his uncle, David Speigel, attended school at the Bootjack building where Roy Huntsinger teaches. When school was dismissed the happy children, glad that their day's studies were ended, started home with all the joyous shouts of school days. There were a number of boy and girl companions of little Ray and yesterday their pleasure was in taking turns at kicking a football, which had been a Christmas present.

Finally it was Ray's turn. He kcked at the ball as hard as he possby could, missed it and fell forward on his face, apparently dead. His compnions were dumbfounded and so startled by the incident that they could do nothing. Fortunately a man came along the road just at this time and believing that he had discovered a spark of life he hurriedly carried the child to his home, but death came before anything could be done. In fact it is said that death had been instantaneous.

Acting Coroner Stoddard and Undertaker Sells were both notified of the mysterious death and at once drove from this city to the Speigel home, which is just five miles west of Seybert's crossing. As yet no arrangements have been dade for the funeral nor has the acting coroner rendered an opinion, but it is thought death followed the rupturing of a blood vessel.

The boy was an orphan, his mother having died when he was very young and he had made his home with his uncle most of the time.

She was married to Reason"John" Hamilton.

good family destination even in a slow economy. And while theme-park admission can be pricey for a family of four, Mandt mentioned a couple of ways to save. Tickets bought online are often cheaper than at the gate; parks sometimes offer deals or discount coupons on soda cans, milk cartons or other items; and some employers offer theme-park discounts as a benefit. Also, if you're likely to go a couple of times, "a season pass will typically pay for itself in less than three visits," Mandt said.

market as "deteriorated," Bernanke gave a sober assessment of prospects to the Senate Banking Committee on Thursday.

The comments increased worries on Wall Street about the future, and private forecasters declared that more interest rate cuts on the part of the central bank are a virtual certainty as Bernanke and his colleagues combat the effects of a severe credit crisis and the worst slump in housing in more than two decades.

Both Bernanke and Treasury Secretary Henry Paulson told the committee that the economy could still avert a full-blown recession, but Democrats on the panel said they believed the government should be doing much more to help millions of Americans cope with a threatened tidal wave of mortgage foreclosures.

"The outlook for the economy has worsened in recent months and the downside risks to growth have increased," Bernanke said. "To date, the largest economic effects of the financial turmoil appear to have been on the housing market orated significantly over the past two years or so."

He noted that hiring has slowed with job creation falling by 17,000 in January, the first such setback in more than four years. He said the weaker labor market along with recent declines in stock prices and declining home prices were likely to be a drag on consumer confidence going forward.

The Fed chief told senators the "virtual shutdown" of the market for subprime mortgages given to people with blemished credit histories or low incomes — and a reluctance by skittish lenders to make "jumbo" home loans exceeding $417,000 — have aggravated problems in the housing market. "Further cuts in homebuilding and in related activities are likely," he said.

Bernanke said that in his own economic forecast he did not predict a recession but a period of sluggish growth "followed by a somewhat stronger pace of growth starting later this year" as the impacts of the Fed's rate cuts and the $168 billion economic stimulus package of tax

INDIANAPOLIS — Cleanup work at some of Indiana's 41 Superfund sites could slow as a result of the coronavirus pandemic, experts said Wednesday.

Nationally, cleanups have slowed because of coronavirus concerns at about 34 sites on the EPA's Superfund National Priorities List. That accounts for 12% of EPA sites with ongoing remedial actions, said Dan Cory, a South Bend attorney with Plews Shadley Racher & Braun law firm.

Cory was among three speakers for an Indiana Chamber of Commerce online conference discussing the impact of the coronavirus on the EPA and Indiana Department of Environmental Management.

Snyder receives Sagamore of Wabash

By Ryne Ruddock

ANDERSON — Bobbette Snyder never dreamed she would get the prestigious Sagamore of the Wabash Award, so she was shocked when she received the honor at her retirement dinner last week at Anderson Country Club.

"I was so humbled to be selected," Snyder said. "This award means a great deal to me."

Snyder

Snyder was executive director of the Leadership Academy of Madison County for 22 years.

Pam Shoot, program director for the LAMC, worked with Snyder for 17 years. Shoot said Snyder was richly deserving of the award.

"She has given back more than her fair share to the community," said Shoot. "She has endless energy and passion for making Madison County and Indiana a better place."

"She has endless energy and passion for making Madison County and Indiana a better place."

Pam Shoot
speaking about Bobbette Snyder

Shoot credited state Rep. Terri Austin, Anderson, with the idea of nominating Snyder for the Sagamore award. Austin notified Gov. Mike Pence, who selects Sagamore recipients.

Keith Trent, Community Hospital Anderson vice president and chief foundation officer, said Snyder has been a "great influence" on the community.

"She is somebody who grew up in the Madison County community, and she has touched so many lives, adult and youth," Trent said. "She has championed leadership, both personally and professionally."

In retirement, Snyder plans to continue working in the interests of the community.

About the award

The Sagamore of the Wabash Award is the highest distinction in Indiana by the state governor. The award is distinguished by "humanity in living, loyalty in friendship, wisdom in council, and inspiration in leadership."

BSU students help prepare disaster announcements

The Associated Press

MUNCIE — TV watchers across Indiana can pick up a tip or two on handling tornadoes, floods and other disasters thanks to a series of public-service announcements put together by Ball State University students.

The students wrote and shot eight, 30-second spots to teach viewers about precautionary steps they can take before an emergency occurs. The first spots to air are called "Family Emergency Kit" and "Pet in Emergencies."

The commercials will run on broadcast and cable channels statewide throughout the year, depending on which message is needed because of the weather. They were produced for the state Department of Homeland Security, according to a statement from Ball State.

Teams of students competed to design the black-and-white commercials, using actors from the community. Faculty then picked the best audio, video and script work.

"This was an incredible introduction to real-world work for our students, who were mostly just entering the field," telecommunications instructor Rich Swingley said in the statement.

To the point, if something is identified as a fantasy, then first, it is unreal to begin with, and second, there is absolutely no direct way to argue that it's not unreal.

Who, then, wants to vote for a fantasy? The innocent-sounding term is very damaging.

Also, in an interview, Bill Clinton used a reporter's question to invoke a comparison between the Rev. Jesse Jackson and Barack Obama. 16 local women will compete for prestigious award

Athena was the Greek goddess of wisdom, war, the arts, industry, justice and skill. The favorite child of Zeus, she was fond of a certain area of Greece and helped its people out by offering an olive tree that they could use for food, oil and wood. Today we use the phrase "offering an olive branch" as a sign of peace.

The area she liked so well became the city of Athens.

Strong, accomplished, professional women, modeled after the traits of Athena, are honored each year by Athena International. In Anderson, one of 16 nominees, all profiled in this special section, will receive the Athena Award on Nov. 13. On hand that night at Anderson Country Club, Lauren Dungy-Poythress will be the featured speaker.

The Athena Award began in 1982 when Martha Merz was asked to serve on the board of directors of the Lansing Michigan Regional Chamber of Commerce.

She was the only woman on the board and discovered that only once in the past was a woman honored by the chamber. This didn't reflect the community, she thought. She sought ways to honor outstanding professional women and the award was born.

It didn't take long for women to be honored in Madison County. The first Athena Award was given in 1988 with Mary M. Porter as the first recipient. The award was given annually until a three-year period, 2002 to 2004, when the award wasn't given. Last year Mye Autoworld and The Herald Bulletin became sponsors of the event.

The 16 women nominated for this year's award represent a variety of fields, including health care, youth, economic development and retail. They work tirelessly to make the community a better place for its residents.

To be nominated for the award, women need to:

It's hard to believe that, were he still alive, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. would be nearly 90 years old. It's just as hard to think that his famous "I Have A Dream" speech was delivered over 40 years ago. According to experts in such things, that speech is one of the two greatest speeches ever delivered to an America in civil distress. The other speech, "The Gettysburg Address," was delivered by Abraham Lincoln to dedicate a Civil War battlefield.

Lincoln and King were outstanding wordsmiths. Both speeches are appropriately brief and marvelously crafted. On this point, a persistent myth is that Lincoln wrote "Gettysburg" hastily and without thought, there is much evidence to the contrary. Similarly, King and his staff labored over every word in "I Have A Dream." These

'SERVANT-LEADERSHIP' MINDED

Submitted photo

Bobbette Snyder is a finalist for the Athena Award.

By STACEY M. LANE GROSH
stacey.grosh@heraldbulletin.com

The nomination card may have her name on it, but Bobbette Snyder didn't want to talk about herself.

"I don't really deserve this," she said coyly about placing as one of 16 finalists for the Athena Award.

"There are so many women in this community who deserve this award. There are just so many amazing women that serve others in quiet ways and unassuming ways."

This is the second year Snyder has placed in the top 16 finalists.

But one of those others says Snyder may not see why she is a shining light in this county.

"Bobbette has been a wonderful role model of servant leadership to the hundreds of graduates of the Leadership Academy," said Keith Trent, Community Hospital vice president in his nomination letter.

He listed her numerous accomplishments including mother of four successful and "servant-leadership" minded children, co-founder of Vision Now consulting company, first coordinator of the Paramount Theatre Centre's Festival of Trees, longtime United Way volunteer and a recipient of the Distinguished Service Award given out by the Boy Scouts. This award is reserved for those who have made a significant impact on our community.

"I'm involved in community alliances to promote education," Snyder said. "It so important to make sure people have what they need to succeed. The only way to be a healthy community is if everybody has that opportunity for success through education."

She is the director of the Leadership Academy of Madison County.

"We're always redeveloping the leadership program to keep it fresh," she said. She also is the adult adviser of the Youth Leadership Academy of Madison County, past co-chair and volunteer for the Madison County United Way campaign, Anderson Rotary Club Centennial Celebration committee member and the chair of the jury for the Governor's Award for Tomorrow's Leaders.

Snyder does what she does because she loves it.

"I love being with people," Snyder said. "My love is for this community to shine and show its best, safe side through people. It's a great place. Through the people it's a great place. The people in this community, they all have that drive to make a difference. ... I can name 10 people off the bat who deserve this award."

Angie Pitts, Carl Erskine, Betty Erskine, Mary Ann Gardner, Debbie Webb, Pam Shoot, she started.

"There are so many people."

She even named Trent, the one who nominated her.

"I wish I could give this award to him for all that he has done for people," she said. "Keith just cares. If it (the award) could cross genders, I would nominate him."

Snyder credited a teacher with making her who she is today.

"We always think of a teacher who inspired us," she said. "The teacher, Ann Harmeson Hardacre, was my dance teacher. She taught a lot more than dance: how to be a young lady, conduct myself in a group, just modeling her graciousness. She is a wonderful asset for this community, while she's never had children of her own, she's had hundreds. She is someone who made a great impact in my direction."

The Athena Award is an amazing thing for Madison County, she said.

"This award is a celebration. It's what a healthy community does. This community celebrates its people."

Tina Baker is a finalist for the Athena Award. She is executive assistant at Hoosier Park.

It has just always been a part of her life — lending a helping hand to those in need.

Elwood's own Tina Baker, now executive assistant at Hoosier Park, is one of the 16 finalists for the 2007 Athena Award.

"I feel very honored to be a finalist for this award," said Baker. "When I read the list of finalists I felt even more honored."

Her work in community relations with Hoosier Park Vice President Tom Bannon helped her fully realize both the need and the methods for lending a helping hand.

She is secretary on the Leadership Academy's board of directors. The Leadership Academy of Madison County is an organization based at Anderson University. "It is a diverse group of people who teach about how to help people in the community," said Baker. "It trains people to be servant leaders."

Baker graduated from the Academy in 2002.

She has served on the board of directors for the Girl Scouts and was a den mother for the Boy Scouts. She has aided the United Way in fundraising endeavors and has been a mentor for Big Brothers Big Sisters.

She also serves on the advisory board for Indiana Business College. "I have spoken to graduates there before about preparing resumes, job interviews and going out into the workplace," said Baker.

The roots of her desire to lend assistance to those less fortunate run deep.

"I'm a nurturing person," said Baker. "I take care of my family. I'm taking care of my father right now. I get that from my mother. I'm from a small community and a close-knit family. I have a hard time saying 'No.'"

Baker graduated from Elwood High School in 1982. Upon completion of vocational school she had various positions from receptionist to payroll manager before joining Hoosier Park in 1995 as an administrative assistant.

Two years later she moved up to her current position as executive assistant to Hoosier Park President Rick Moore, who nominated Baker for this award.

"She is a selfless person who is totally committed to Hoosier Park," said Moore. "She does whatever is needed to get the job done and does it with a smile on her face. She really enjoys being involved. She works with me not for me. I've been so fortunate to have somebody like her with me."

Baker has three children: Stephanie, 30; Jason, 28; and Zachary, 9. She also has one grandchild: Darian, 4.

Currently she is also helping her husband Steve Baker with his paintless dent repair business.

Congratulations to Tina Baker on your nomination for the Athena Award!

It's hard to believe that, were he still alive, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. would be nearly 90 years old. It's just as hard to think that his famous "I Have A Dream" speech was delivered over 40 years ago. According to experts in such things, that speech is one of the two greatest speeches ever delivered to an America in civil distress. The other speech, "The Gettysburg Address," was delivered by Abraham Lincoln to dedicate a Civil War battlefield.

Lincoln and King were outstanding wordsmiths. Both speeches are appropriately brief and marvelously crafted. On this point, a persistent myth is that Lincoln wrote "Gettysburg" hastily and without thought, there is much evidence to the contrary. Similarly, King and his staff labored over every word in "I Have A Dream." These

A black, curly haired puppy will be featured at the Dream Ball the evening of Feb. 2. The little boy is a miniature golden doodle. He will grow up to weigh about 26 pounds and won't shed much if at all, making him a great addition to a family of allergy prone humans.

His heritage is golden retriever and miniature poodle. Being a golden doodle brings together the best of both breeds with fewer health concerns according to the Web site. He is being offered at auction by Doodle Darlings by Glory Lane in Pendleton to raise money so human little boys and girls will have enough to eat.

The Snyders will emcee the evening, sharing food bank facts and encouraging all to participate. There will be plenty of time to enjoy food and friends and to dance to the music of the Endless Summer Band. You will love how Kathy Flemming from Seasons of the Heart highlights the beautiful ballroom with awesome decorations.

We are delighted to have Tom and Bobbette Snyder as our honorary chairs. They are both longtime friends of Second Harvest and of the community. Tom is the new president of Ivy Tech Community College and Bobbette is the executive director of the Leadership Academy of Madison County.

By the end of the evening Second Harvest Food Bank of East Central Indiana hopes to raise $30,000. Corporate sponsors are covering expenses allowing all money raised through the auction and reservations to be used for hunger relief.

Saint John's Health System is the featured sponsor this year. Associate sponsors include Prairie Farms Dairy, Old National Bank, DelTec Information Solutions, Community Hospital Anderson and First Merchants Bank of Central Indiana. Don't be surprised if you see a couple more added by event day as some approvals are still moving through the corporate channels! Contributing sponsors are Friends of Second Harvest, Larry and Louann Contos, and W.R. Duncan & Son Inc.

Second Harvest Food Bank exists so that the most vulnerable people in this eight-county region will be free from hunger. We do this through advocacy and by soliciting, storing and distributing food designated for families struggling to make ends meet.

Our operational budget is $700,000. This does not include the value of the product we handle. The money allows us to secure and distribute three to four million pounds of donated food a year. Funds come from individuals, businesses, foundations, United Way, United Fund and other grants, as well as support from the pantries and meal programs we supply.

The Dream Ball is a special event and the biggest one we do. Most people attending give to Second Harvest at other times during the year or belong to organizations that do. The event offers the opportunity for friends of the food bank to come together for a wonderful evening, to raise money collectively and to have fun while doing so.

If a fancy, schmancy dance with a got-to-love-it auction sounds good to you, we hope you call to reserve your place at a table. You will join a crowd of nice people and every dollar you spend will provide five pounds of food for a community neighbor in need.

We hope to see you at 6 p.m. Saturday night, Feb. 2, at the historic Paramount Centre Ballroom in downtown Anderson ... ruff, ruff, ruff ... is that a golden doodle pup I hear? Is he calling for his new family? Does it sound like the doggie version of your name? Well then, be sure to call Tiffany today!

A WOMAN WHO CHANGES LIVES

By MARK OLEJNICZAK
mark.olejniczak@heraldbulletin.com

Marion White has made a positive impact on many people's lives throughout the Madison County area through her position at the St. John's Anderson Center and active community service efforts outside work.

White comes highly recommended by her co-workers at the St. John's Anderson Center for this year's Athena Award.

"Marion truly believes in helping other people. She is very hands on and is there for people from all walks of life," Susan Kracke said. "Marion is always willing to go the extra mile for you. I lost my husband two years ago in a plane crash, and Marion came over to my house, as a good friend to be there for me. It was very therapeutic and is just one of many examples of the truly compassionate person she is."

White began at the ground floor level of a hospital, as a registered nurse in the chemical dependency unit before the St. John's Anderson Center opened. In 1985, the center opened its doors, and she continued on assisting at the facility in the same capacity as a nurse. White later went on to train and become a chemical dependency counselor. She has also held the title of director of therapy services for two years.

In 1997, White was elevated to director of Anderson Center Services, which she held until 2001. White was promoted to her present position as executive director of St. John's Anderson Center in December 2001.

"Marion truly fulfills the mission and philosophy of St. John's Anderson Center," Peggy Reynolds, executive assistant for St. John's Anderson Center, said. "Marion has made sacrifices personally for co-workers, friends and The Anderson Center. She is someone who treats everyone with dignity and respect no matter who they are."

White, besides helping people through her professional duties during the day, is a firm believer in assisting others in continuing their education. She teaches classes in Communications within Organizations and Social Problems in the Workplace at Anderson University for adults that are interested in furthering themselves educationally.

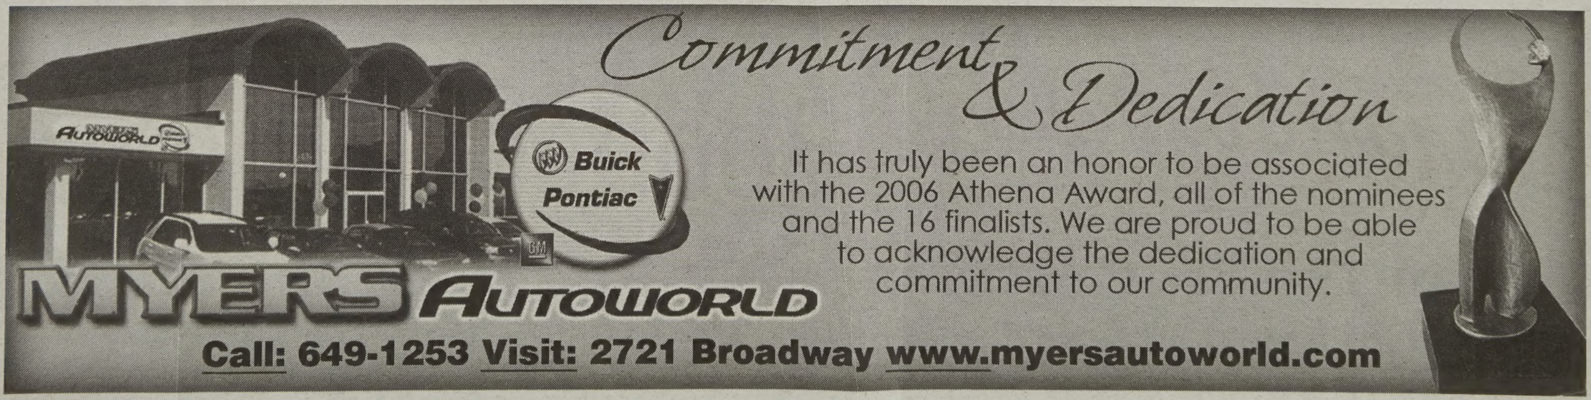
Kracke nominated White for the distinguished Athena Award that is presented to a deserving woman who meets a list of requirements that includes demonstrating excellence in her profession, along with community involvement. White is now one of 16 finalists.

Kracke has known White for around five years and feels White is truly what you look for an Athena winner as a caring woman that is a true servant to her community in her eyes.

"She has a passion for St. John's Anderson Center and helping those who come through the center as much as anyone I have ever seen," Reynolds said.

White is active in the Madison County area serving as a board member for the House of Hope, serves on The Indiana Council of Substance abuse as well as volunteers with many other organizations.

White was on vacation and was unavailable to interview for this story.



Commitment & Dedication

It has truly been an honor to be associated with the 2006 Athena Award, all of the nominees and the 16 finalists. We are proud to be able to acknowledge the dedication and commitment to our community.

Best nurse celebrating 40 years at St. Vincent Anderson

Nancy Pitcock knew she wanted to be in healthcare from a very young age

By Abbey Doyle
The Herald Bulletin

ANDERSON — In four decades of nursing, Nancy Pitcock has worked in every area of the hospital involving nursing.

All 40 of her years in the field have been spent at St. Vincent Regional Hospital Anderson, with the last four years as the chief nursing officer.

"I always wanted to help other people," Pitcock said. "Nursing felt like the right thing for me to do."

She was humbled at being named the best nurse in Madison County by The Herald Bulletin readers.

"It is an honor to be recognized for the work I do every day," Pitcock said. "I don't feel it is any more important than what everyone else is doing. It is always an honor to be recognized for doing something that I love to do. It is something I have a passion about and enjoy helping staff and patients."

She received her registered nurse diploma from Holy Cross School of Nursing, a bachelor's degree in social work from Saint Mary-of-the-Woods College and a master's in nursing in 2012 from Ball State University. She worked in the emergency department for the majority of that time, 1975 to 2004.

Pitcock said she'd wanted to be a nurse from a very young age and felt like she had something to give them to help them in their situation. In her current role as chief nursing officer, she isn't giving patients direct care, but she ensures the nursing staff has everything they need to best help patients.

One of her favorite positions has been as a hospice nurse. Pitcock was the first the hospital had.

"I worked with the physicians and helped develop a plan of care one-on-one with patients during the most vulnerable times of their lives," she said. "I enjoyed that."

Pitcock, with other hospital staff, has been traveling to Haiti for nearly 20 years for medical missions where she assists in surgery.

St. Vincent President Tom VanOsdol said Pitcock has "tremendous experience," and her compassionate caring for every individual patient has her living out the hospital's missions and core values.

"Her support of our nursing staff is amazing," he said. "She is a nurse's nurse and a leader in our organization. She regularly is out on the patient units rolling up her sleeves and helping out delivering care to do whatever is needed."

VanOsdol said Pitcock is very deserving of the honor and an invaluable leader and representative of the hospital.

Pitcock has been married to Jerry for 40 years. They have two sons — Joshua (married to Katie) and Justin — and a 9-year-old grandson, Madden.

Pitcock voted Madison County's best nurse

Chief nursing officer a 35-year Saint John's veteran

By Aleasha Sandley
The Herald Bulletin

ANDERSON — Nancy Pitcock was surprised to learn on her first day back at work after a mission trip to Haiti that she had been voted the best nurse in Madison County.

The 35-year veteran nurse at Saint John's Medical Center said many of the 400 caregivers she oversees as chief nursing officer deserved the recognition just as much.

"I don't feel the least bit worthy," Pitcock said. "There's so many other nurses. Every time you receive an award like this, you're humbled."

Pitcock was chosen the best nurse through The Herald Bulletin's annual Best Of Madison County contest, where county residents turn in ballots or vote online for their favorite aspects of living there.

Pitcock has been chief nursing officer since August, but she started as a staff nurse in the emergency department, orthopedics and critical care and a float nurse. She also has worked as a hospice nurse, administrative director manager of the emergency department and director of nursing.

"I've worked in just about every area of nursing there is," Pitcock said. "I've always wanted to be a nurse since I was a little girl. I can't remember ever not wanting to."

In addition to her nursing duties at home, Pitcock, who is originally from Lapel, has traveled annually to Haiti since 1985 with the hospital's Medical, Dental and Surgical Mission Team.

Most of her days, however, involve running the operations that take care of patients.

"What I like best about my job is just being able to be a mentor and a teacher and an advocate for all the nurses," she said. "Nursing is a very complicated science actually. I have a very good team, and it's easy for us to work together to find solutions.

"Our goal every day is what is best for the patient."

Pitcock received her registered nurse diploma from Holy Cross School of Nursing and a bachelor's degree in social work from Saint Mary-of-the-Woods College. She has been honored with the Sister John Francis Award from Holy Cross in 2004, the Saint John's Health System Servant Leader Award in 2001 and was a YWCA Women in Business nominee in 2000.

"Nancy is one of the most accomplished nurses and one of the finest, most compassionate individuals I have ever had the privilege of knowing," Saint John's President Tom VanOsdol said. "She is leader at Saint John's Health System and within our community, and we are truly proud of this most deserving recognition for her."

Spaniel named Rusty. Miller still credits Baker for helping Rusty survive a heart worm procedure.

"This was back when heart worm wasn't all that well known in Indiana and a very high percentage of dogs did not survive the treatment," Miller said. "Our dog made it and I really attribute that to Dr. Baker because you've got to do it a certain way. I'm gonna say (Rusty) had another five or six years after that."

The Millers now reside in Muncie, but they return to Chesterfield to bring their 12-year-old Yorkshire Terrier, Abby, to Baker. Several family members have also become loyal customers.

"He is one of the most friendly people we've ever met," Miller said. Once, when the Millers' daughter ran her car into a ditch, Baker was driving by and stopped to make sure she was OK.

Baker's talents aren't limited to medicine, either. He also [illegible]ight bass in bluegrass combo Common Ground, which performed Feb. 21 at the Snowflake Bluegrass Festival in Anderson.

Baker grew up on a farm and found his passion and profession when someone offhandedly suggested he shadow a local veterinarian.

"I spent one day with him and said, that's what I want to do," Baker said. "I love it as much today."

He graduated from Pendleton Heights High School in 1963 and attended Purdue, graduating in 1969.

Today, Baker works alongside veterinarians Sean Richards and Debbie Breitenwischer. He said the award represents the efforts of the entire staff at Chesterfield Animal Hospital.

"We have a wonderful staff," Baker said. "I could not sit here and accept this award without the staff sitting right up here with me. They make it a wonderful experience."

Chief nursing officer at St. Vincent to retire after 44 years

BY DEVAN FILCHAK
THE HERALD BULLETIN

ANDERSON – When Nancy Pitcock began working at St. John's Hickey Memorial Hospital in college, she wasn't expecting to work there for the rest of her career.

She really didn't expect to hold the positions of vice president and chief nursing officer at the hospital, now St. Vincent Anderson, when she retired 46 years later.

In her last week, Pitcock has looked through old photographs that her assistant has put aside, but she said she's gotten more sentimental just looking at prayers people have given her over the past decades.

"It just warms your heart," she said.

Pitcock began her work at St. John's in 1971 when she was required to do rounds in an operating room while working on her nurse diploma. At that time, the hospital did not yet have an intensive care unit, so students making rounds would sit with critical care patients one on one.

About two years later, she officially started her work at the Anderson hospital as a nurse.

She spent much of her career working in the Emergency Department, first as a nurse and later as the manager of the department for four years.

slamming the Democrats anew.

"I'm very happy to announce that, with zero of the Democrats' votes, the motion to proceed on health care has just passed. And now we move forward toward truly great health care for the American people," Trump said. "This was a big step. I want to thank Senator John McCain — very brave man."

At its most basic, the Republican legislation is aimed at undoing Obamacare's unpopular mandates for most people to carry insurance and businesses to offer it. The GOP would repeal Obamacare taxes and unwind an expansion of the Medicaid program for the poor, the disabled and nursing home residents The result would be 20 million to 30 million people losing insurance over a decade, depending on the version of the bill.

The GOP legislation has polled abysmally, while Obamacare itself has grown steadily more popular. Yet most Republicans argue that failing to deliver on their promises to pass repeal-and-replace legislation would be worse than passing an unpopular bill, because it would expose the GOP as unable to govern despite controlling majorities in the House, Senate and White House.

Tuesday's vote amounted to a procedural hurdle for legislation whose final form is impossible to predict under the Senate's byzantine amendment process, which will unfold over the next several days.

ultimately be voting on, and in an indication of the uncertainty ahead, McConnell said the Senate will "let the voting take us where it will." The expectation is that he will bring up a series of amendments, including a straight-up repeal and fuller replacement legislation, to see where consensus may lie.

Yet after seven years of empty promises, and weeks of hand-wringing and false starts on Capitol Hill, it was the Senate's first concrete step toward delivering on innumerable pledges to undo former President Barack Obama's law. It came after several near-death experiences for earlier versions of the legislation, and only after Trump summoned senators to the White House last week to order them to try again after McConnell had essentially conceded defeat.

"The people who sent us here expect us to begin this debate, to have the courage to tackle the tough issues," McConnell said before the vote.

LATE VOTE

Late Tuesday, the Senate blocked a wide-ranging proposal by Republicans to repeal much of Obama's health care law and replace it with a more restrictive plan.

Senators voted 57-43 late Tuesday to reject the plan in the first vote on an amendment to the bill. Those voting "no" included nine defecting Republicans.

The rejected proposal included language by McConnell erasing the Obama law's tax penalties on people not buying insurance and cutting Medicaid.

cause Lewis had gone into the house without permission, and was standing outside and refusing to leave.

"Joe stated that he has been seeing things and hearing voices that are not there tonight," and that he needed help and different medication, Stires said.

Officers asked Lewis if they could help him by taking him to see a doctor, and he agreed to go, according to the probable cause statement.

Stires said he put Lewis in handcuffs without incident as he was talking to emergency medical technicians. Stires, meanwhile, went inside the house to gather information from the victim.

While doing so, Stires saw Lewis trying to run away from another officer. He ran outside to help, according to his probable cause statement.

The other officer and EMT had Lewis on the ground by the time Stires reached them, and Lewis was screaming and thrashing around. Stires said he put his right knee on Lewis' head to prevent him from hitting it on the sidewalk.

The other officer was kicked in the chest several times while attempting to restrain Lewis' legs. A sheriff's deputy arrived a few minutes later and put leg restraints on Lewis and he was taken to the hospital.

Police said Lewis sustained minor scrapes on his cheeks from moving around on the sidewalk, and cuts on his wrists from resisting with the handcuffs on, according to the probable cause statement.

"My deputy absolutely did not tase anyone," Mellinger said in an interview earlier this year.

Deputies who use their tasers are required to fill out a report, and there was no credible information to suggest tasers were used during the arrest, the sheriff added.

Pitcock said when she was a young nurse, the thrill of working in the busy emergency room drew her, and that passion grew and stayed strong as she continued through her career.

"I like the fast pace (and) quick thinking," she said. "All nurses are able to use all of their skills, just in a different way. Quick review, quick assessment, make a decision; I really liked that."

Mike Schroyer, president of the St. Vincent Northeast Region, said Pitcock has had a great impact on the emergency department over the years, which is now a point of pride for the hospital.

She also worked as a hospice nurse for six years, helping learn and build the then-new hospice program from the ground up.

The days of working nights in both the emergency department and in hospice care are the ones she thinks fondly of now. While the work was challenging, working with the patients was quite rewarding, she said.

Schroyer said in a letter to associates of the St. Vincent Northeast Region that Pitcock's accomplishments stack up over her time at St. Vincent Anderson.

"It's difficult to summarize the impact Nancy's life has had on our organization for over four decades," he said. "With every decision she has made, every program she has implemented and every associate she has hired, she has strived to do what is best for the patients we serve."

John P. Cleary | The Herald Bulletin

Nancy Pitcock, vice president and chief nursing officer for St. Vincent Anderson, is retiring after 46 years of service at the hospital, starting in 1971 as a college student. Here she looks over the butterfly tree that is in the Healing Garden of the hospital. The tree is in memory of Nancy's mother, Romona Sylvester.

Pitcock has worked in every department at St. Vincent Anderson as a nurse. During her career, she's also been able to obtain two additional degrees – a Bachelor of Social Work from St. Mary-of-the-Woods College and a Master of Science in Nursing from Ball State University.

One of the biggest changes in the hospital Pitcock said she has noticed is the growth of technology. When she began in the field, all charts were kept on paper records.

Pitcock only had a landline phone in her office when she became the manager of the ER. Now, like most professionals, she has a cellphone on her at almost all times.

She said it will be a different feeling to not being "on" all the time once she retires Thursday and clears her calendar and email from her smartphone.

While she thinks she will eventually volunteer at the hospital in some capacity, she's looking forward to traveling even more with her husband, Jerry Pitcock.

"I want to try not having a plan for a month," she said.

Military personnel from all over the country face peril every day. Not just overseas, but on home soil, too, as they work diligently to safeguard our country.

They take part in dangerous missions and training exercises. While the military strives to make them safe, they often risk their lives. That holds true not only in the caves of Afghanistan and the villages of Iraq, but here at home, too, as they study and train to do their jobs.

Medical mission to Haiti

Local health care professionals bring their services to village

ANDERSON — In some areas of the world, health care isn't around except for one week a year.

That is the case for a small village in Haiti where health care professionals from St. Vincent Anderson Regional Hospital and those others associated with St. Mary's Church go on a mission trip each year.

Dr. Ben McCurdy and Nancy Pitcock, chief nursing officer of St. Vincent Anderson Regional, presented photos and stories from their most recent trip in February to the Anderson Rotary Club at their most recent meeting.

The nearest city with medical care from the village is about two to three hours away in Miragoane, McCurdy said.

During the week, the medical team sees as many patients as possible, but they have to turn away about 50 people each year. McCurdy said those who are turned away are given a card to hold their place in line for medical services the following year.

Doctors see patients in a Haitian clinic that is held for one week a year. The clinic is the only health care the village will receive all year.

The presentation was to thank Rotary for its donation the previous year. McCurdy said it costs about $10,000 for someone in the United States to have a hernia repaired, which is a common surgery he does when on the mission trips.

"What would normally pay for one medical patient here paid for 21 hernia repairs there," he said.

This past February, McCurdy said about 3,000 people in the village were seen medically, and about 250 people received dental care. He and Pitcock are on the surgical team, and they performed 47 surgeries this past trip.

The group has been going on the trips for more than 20 years. Over the years, a lot has changed, such as the organizational flow to make the most out of the week and their ability to perform more complicated care.

"We didn't have electricity (when I first started going)," McCurdy said. "We tried to do some surgeries under flashlights."

Pitcock said she's enjoyed watching the village change over the years because of the medical care they receive just once a year.

"The village is healthier," she said. "We've been giving vitamins to all these kids, and we've watched them grow up."

Lost tooth leads to surprise attraction to denta

Dear Abby
SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

DEAR ABBY: A year ago, I lost a tooth. I'm a 56-year-old woman on disability, short on funds to rectify the problem, so I visited my local hospital's dental clinic. I hadn't visited a dentist in years, so I was quite fearful.

The clinic allows a dental resident to work on your issue under the supervision of a practiced dentist. The work I needed was performed every two weeks for about four months. What I did not count on was becoming seriously attracted to a 29-year-old resident I'll call "Justin."

At first, I couldn't believe it was possible, given the fact that I'm old enough to be his mother and my ex-husband is a doctor. I was a teacher and I know all the "rules." In fairness, in NO WAY did Justin or I do or say anything inappropriate. Still, certain circumstances led me to believe that he felt the same about me. Neither of us acted on this.

My question: The work has been over for months, but some days the memories are so intense, I can't get him out of my mind. I don't know how to handle this. Please help. — UNEXPECTED IN NEW YORK

DEAR UNEXPECTED: The "rules" you referred to are a code of ethics that professionals are expected to adhere to. The way to handle your feelings would be to consider that if Justin were to act on the feelings you think he shared with you, he could lose his job, and the future he has worked so hard to build would be destroyed. If you care about him at all beyond your attraction, you will not pursue this further.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing about how to proceed with expressing sympathy for an old friend.

My husband and I were very close friends with a couple for about eight years. We moved away, but continued to see each other occasionally. We kept in touch, and in the past few years have been able to visit more frequently. When we were in their city six months ago, we saw them a few times and they mentioned that they had no friends. I know she has no siblings or parents left.

Her husband died suddenly of a stroke five months ago. They were together for 50 years. I sent her a formal sympathy note and three more casual follow-ups. I also wrote a poem in his memory. It may seem excessive, but I remember how bereft she felt when her sister died, and she felt that sympathy was not sufficiently extended (I don't think she was pointing the finger at me).

Abby, I don't want her to think that we aren't feeling a lot of sympathy for her. Yet her silence indicates that either our overtures are unwanted or that her condition is so bad that she's emotionally overwhelmed. When does an old friend stop reaching out? — BEWILDERED IN OHIO

DEAR BEWILDERED: Call the woman and ASK HER how she's doing. Explain that because you

HOROSCOPE

Tuesday, May 2, 2017

This year you could be looking at a change in your priorities. You are likely to throw yourself into a project that might cost a lot more than you had anticipated; nevertheless, it will feel worthwhile. If you are single, many people fantasize about how it would feel to be yours. You will need to decide who knocks your socks off. If you are attached, the two of you create an even stronger foundation. Your home and domestic life soar in importance. LEO pushes you in a charming kind of way.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You are full of energy. Others are drawn to you because of your vivaciousness. A friend might come down hard on you, but only because he or she is jealous and doesn't realize it. Tension builds between you and someone else.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You could be overwhelmed by the many choices you have. As a result, you might want to cocoon and avoid any unneeded tension. You seem to be in the mood to do some impulsive shopping. Save the receipts, in case you change your mind.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You push hard to accomplish what you want. You could become argumentative if others get in your way. Try to ease up a little with the understanding that you are a whirlwind of energy. Not everyone is in the same headspace as you are. Tension builds.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You display sensitivity to others. Find a physical outlet that you enjoy; it can even be vacuuming the house. You will feel better once you release all of your pent-up frustration. Your feelings are close to the surface, but their cause might be hidden.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Others greet you with a big smile today. A friend might be touchy and overly assertive. You know how to ignore this person or talk him or her down. By all means, follow through — for your sake and others'.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A lot seems to be going on behind the scenes right now. You easily could be overwhelmed by what is happening. You might not feel confident about finding out what isn't working. You are likely to get some odd feedback.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You could be exhausted and might seek out a different solution, one that you feel will be more workable than your current one. Don't push someone away, even if he or she challenges your thinking. Share more of where you are coming from.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You need to think before you take action. A loved one might be pushing you in a certain direction. Your gentler ways will win out in the end. Just keep any sarcasm under wraps for now. You don't want to push this person away even more.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You might decide to sign up for a workshop or class to enhance your knowledge. Others could be unusually assertive, which will irritate you. You'll want to pull back and find out what is bothering them. First, stop and ask yourself what is bothering you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Deal with others on a one-on-one level. Your caring attitude is likely to open a door for you, but you might not be prepared for what comes through it. Unfortunately, you won't be able to undo this action. Make more time for a partner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Defer to others right now. You will see many new opportunities surrounding you. Your creativity emerges, which allows you to explore different options. Express your caring in a way that allows a child or loved one to see it. Don't play it too cool.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Pace yourself, and come to an understanding with a close friend or associate. This person has expectations that you might not be able to meet. Do not let your temper interfere with a conversation. Schedule an important appointment today.

NUTRITION

pushed the changes as part of her "Let's Move" campaign to combat childhood obesity.

The Obama administration rules set fat, sugar and sodium limits on foods in the lunch line and beyond. Schools have long been required to follow government nutrition rules if they accept federal reimbursements for free and reduced-price meals for low-income students, but these standards were stricter.

The Trump administration changes leave most of the Obama administration rules in place, including rules that students must take fruits and vegetables on the lunch line. Some schools have asked for changes to that policy, saying students often throw them away.

As the healthier school meals have now been in place for five years, many schools have gotten used to them and children have developed more of a taste for the healthier foods. But schools have said some parts of the law are still causing them trouble, such as finding tasty foods that are high in whole grains. Some school nutrition directors have said they have a hard time finding whole grain pastas, biscuits and tortillas that kids will eat.

Health advocates who have championed the rules are concerned about the freeze in sodium levels, in particular. School lunches for elementary school students are now required to have less than 1,230 mg of sodium, a change put in place in 2014. The new rule would keep the meals at that level, delaying a requirement to lower sodium to 935 mg this year.

Clymer said short traffic lights are "pretty maddening," and it's an issue he's raised before with INDOT. He was glad on Monday to hear that officials had found and fixed the problem.

"I just know it's nice to have traffic lights that work properly," said Clymer, who spends about half the year living in Florida where he says traffic lights work more effectively than they do here in Indiana.

Lutz tops Mengelt in Madison County

Delaware County malfunction will delay official results

By AVON WATERS

Lutz

Republican incumbent L. Jack Lutz may have to wait up to 13 days to get the final results of his race against Democratic challenger Lee Ann Mengelt. The two locked horns in the District 35 race for the Indiana House of Representatives. Madison County voters gave the nod to Lutz with 57 percent of its vote.

Lutz said he is confident he carried Tipton County. Local unofficial results with all precincts reporting in Madison County show he won with 3,104 votes to 2,360 votes. But due to voter machine malfunctions in Delaware County and a judge's decision to leave the polls open there until almost 9 p.m., the final count for the district that spans areas of Hamilton, Tipton, Delaware and Madison counties will be delayed nearly two weeks.

"Everything up to 6 p.m. there (in Delaware County) can be counted on machines. After that, everything is on paper provisional ballots," Lutz said. "I was told by Delaware County that they aren't even going to count them tonight. When they count them (provisional), or if they count them, who knows."

With 58 of 75 precincts reporting in Delaware County, Lutz led Mengelt 5,419 to 5,198 votes late Tuesday.

Delays in election returns for District 35 in Delaware County resulted from machines in many districts not being operational when the polls opened due to a programming error. Some machines took until about 9 a.m. to get working, Lutz said.

District 35 includes most of the rural townships north of Pendleton in Madison County and wraps around District 36, the Anderson metropolitan area. More than half of the 35th district extends east into Delaware County's rural townships that wrap around Muncie.

After repeated calls to challenger Lee Ann Mengelt a friend of Mengelt, Dustin Eggink, said she would not be available for comment until this morning.

Spencer holds onto his Circuit Court judgeship

Close race throughout indicated possible upset

By LEE NOBLE
lee.noble@heraldbulletin.com

In a neck-and-neck race, incumbent Democrat Fredrick Spencer retained his seat on the Madison Circuit Court bench in Tuesday's election.

Republican Tom Chaille, a Madison County deputy prosecutor, appeared to come out on top early in Tuesday's voting in his challenge of the judge, but there were 5,300 absentee ballots outstanding at the time.

The final count, including absentee ballots, showed Spencer on top carrying 51.75 percent of the vote to Chaille's 48.25 percent. Spencer earned 20,239 votes to Chaille's 18,873.

The 68-year-old Spencer, arriving at Democratic Party headquarters just before 10 p.m. and before the absentee ballots were included in the results, said only "I'm not saying anything until it's over.

"Write this down — I'm not conceding."

The crowd gathered on the porch of his party's Eighth Street headquarters, just yards from the Madison County Government Center, laughed at the colorful judge's comments and greeted him on his way in.

At that point the results showed him trailing by about 100 votes.

Back at the Paramount Theatre Centre Ballroom, where the Republican Party hosted its reception Tuesday evening, Chaille didn't forfeit much comment because of the outstanding ballots.

"At this point it's too close to call," Chaille said. "We've worked really hard all the way through and controlled all we could control, and we're hoping for the best."

It was the second time that he had run for office and the second time he'd made it a close race. He said he ran for Madison Superior Court 2 judge in the last election and lost by only 619 votes.

The 35-year-old Chaille said he didn't want to speculate on whether or not he'd run for office again, but gave thanks to his supporters for their efforts.

"It's a humbling experience. We had a lot of people volunteer for us and vote for me and I appreciate everybody's support," Chaille said.

This re-election extends Spencer's 24-year career on the Circuit Court bench.

All results of Tuesday's voting are unofficial until approved by the state of Indiana.

Adapting for job growth

By L. JACK LUTZ

As a state leader, it is important to understand the role of state government in creating economic development for our region. First, we must create a functional foundation for trade by making it easy for businesses to operate in our community. Second, we must provide opportunities for residents to learn adaptable skills by increasing our technology and higher education resources.

Over the past couple of years, our community has worked seamlessly to adapt to the changing needs listed above. Our local officials have worked tirelessly to promote the region and, at a state level, new leadership has provided, and will continue to work towards, a new blueprint for our community.

These last few years in state government, leaders have redefined Indiana's economic development plan through the Indiana Economic Development Corporation and numerous other initiatives to attract employers to our state. According to the Indiana Department of Workforce Development, Indiana gained over 91,000 jobs from January of last to this year. However, while this is a great positive direction, the changing atmosphere for jobs in our community must continue to be addressed.

To build on our efforts, we must continue to develop from the Interstate 69 corridor. We can do this by implementing "shovel-ready" sites for businesses looking to relocate. I have worked closely with our local Anderson and Madison County officials to establish economic development tools specific to our region. It is important, however, through all of these measures, that we responsibly offer these ideas and incentives to businesses in a way that does not compound burden on Hoosier families.

Also, to combat a changing economy, our local residents must have a level playing field to adapt. That is why I also support the creation of Lifelong Learning Accounts to allow our local workers to establish tax-free savings accounts to use for job-related education costs. We must make it easier to gain technology and distribution related skills by increasing support to our local Ivy Tech campus. I will continue to work on initiatives that create a bridge between existing businesses, businesses looking to locate to our area and our technical learning institutions that give our region an advantage.

Additionally, in order to add a surge of infrastructure dollars that give another advantage to our community, the Governor's Major Moves program will provide over $123 million in unexpected funds to Madison County and $104 million in unexpected funds to Delaware County.

In the past, our area was slow to adapt to a changing marketplace, unable to alter the status quo, and ineffectually prepared to increase job and education opportunities for residents. However, times are changing. We have aggressive local and state leadership. New businesses, such as Nestlé and Sallie Mae, are relocating to our communities.

We must continue to prepare excellent locations for businesses to relocate and strengthen businesses that already call Anderson and Madison County home. To do this, we have worked to improve infrastructure and, most importantly, provide continued resources to our community for additional high-tech education.

L. Jack Lutz is the Republican candidate for state representative for District 35.

AP statistics also showed nearly twice as many Iraqi security forces died last month as U.S. forces — 194 versus 106. The Interior Ministry said at least 119 Iraqi policemen were killed.

With shootings, bombings and abductions tearing apart Iraq three years after the U.S.-led invasion, the war in Iraq is the top issue for voters before next week's U.S. congressional elections.

The Iraqi president, visiting Paris, said Thursday all American forces could be gone from Iraq within three years.

At least 49 people were killed or found dead throughout Iraq on Thursday, including the seven killed when the motorcycle blew up in a crowded market in Baghdad's Sadr City district. At least 45 people were wounded in that attack, many of them seriously, police said.

It was the first bombing in Sadr City since Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki ordered the lifting Tuesday of the week-old U.S.-Iraqi army security blockade on the sprawling Shiite slum of 2.5 million people.

Police Lt. Thaer Mahmoud

Mahdi Army militiamen, who control the district, arrived quickly to disperse a crowd of onlookers, fearing a second blast targeting rescuers and police as has repeatedly been the case in past bombings.

The slain university dean, Jassim al-Asadi, a Shiite, was returning home after picking up his son from school and his wife from her teaching job, when gunmen drove alongside and sprayed his car with automatic weapons, police Lt. Ahmed Ibrahim said. Al-Asadi's wife and son also were killed, Ibrahim said.

Man removes sharp tool from rear at gunpoint

By KARL FISCHER
McClatchy-Tribune News Service

EL CERRITO, Calif. — A police encounter with a naked man near the El Cerrito BART station turned into an arrest on suspicion of carrying a concealed weapon Thursday.

Passersby called officers about 7:50 a.m. to report that a naked man was lying on a tree stump beside the Ohlone Greenway path, exposing himself and performing lewd acts.

Police saw Sheehan and arrested him on suspicion of police called for a fire engine. Firefighters quickly decided that an emergency room would be better equipped to deal with the situation.

Sheehan interceded before an ambulance was called.

"When he heard what they were talking about he said, 'Hey, don't worry about it. I can do it,'" said El Cerrito Detective Cpl. Don Horgan.

Mindful that a 6-inch metal awl wrapped in black electrical tape could be used as a weapon, officers kept their weapons trained on the 33-year-old.

Historic Georgia tow

Infestation too large for local Bat

AMERICUS, Ga. — The grand historic mansions of this Southern town have become infested with millions of bats — so many that the sky turns black with each sunset. So many that not even the neighborhood Batman can help.

"This town is in bad shape," said George Perkins, a bat remover who often makes public appearances in the caped crusader's costume and drives his own Batmobile, a retro-styled Chrysler Prowler with bat emblems.

Has any modern team made making routine throws to bases look more difficult than the Tigers? Those throws probably lost Detroit and the owners for a new contract. I hope the poor post-season show the sport put on doesn't put a damper that enthusiasm.

Prosecutor Rodney Cummings:

"Don't be mislead by Deceptive Campaign Advertising!"

- My opponent has identified two cases (out of the many thousands we prosecute) that were dismissed because they weren't brought to trial timely. What he didn't disclose was that the trial calendar is managed by the judge's staff not the prosecutor's staff.

- My opponent has identified one potential child molesting case not filed after a referral from a police agency. What he didn't disclose is that prosecutors review all cases referred by police agencies to ensure that there is sufficient admissible evidence to warrant a criminal prosecution, and if not the case is sent back for additional police investigation.

- My opponent has cited a current double murder prosecution, where the defendant was released from jail and the defendant's lawyer is now seeking dismissal. What my opponent didn't disclose was that the judge set the trial too far in advance, and the judge's mistake led to his release from jail. This is the same judge who was recently admonished by the court of appeals for improperly dismissing another murder case.

1810s - 1820s: Statehood

Indiana becomes the 19th state in 1816 and two years later the Treaty of St. Mary's is signed by area Indians with an agreement to vacate the area by 1821.

1820: Benjamin Fisher comes through Anderson, which he calls a mere Indian village. He settles in the Fishersburg area; white settlers first hear the Indian legend of lead mines in the area.
1821: Methodist circuit riders come to the area and the first church services are held.
1823: Madison County is organized. By this time, Benoni Freel, Benjamin Fisher, George Redick, George Rambo, John Anderson, the Studleys and Phillip Huffman are settled in the area. Fishersburg is named for John Fisher, who was scalped by Indians near Strawtown.
1827: A schoolhouse/church is built. Abraham Teeters is the first teacher for the two-month term.
1828: Fishersburg is now a regular part of the Fall Creek Circuit of Methodists out of Noblesville.

During the 1830s, a small land boom happens in the Fishersburg area because of the statewide canal project. The first loghouse in the town of Fishersburg is built by Zorabable Rogers. calculations, using a paper and a brain that's not really awake yet, I concluded three things:

1. The clock was supposed to go BACK, not forward

2. I've been asleep for only three hours

3. I was roused from sleep by a cold shower, from a lawn sprinkler. In my neighbor's yard.

9:30 a.m.

Dear Diary:

After further rough mathematics, I determine three more things:

1. My front door is much further away than I thought it was.

2. I've forgotten how to work a sidewalk.

3. I'm about 20 years too old to be doing this kind of thing.

4. I ate Spanish peanuts last night. (Don't ask.)

10:12 a.m.

Dear Diary:

The dog greets me eagerly when I make it to the apartment. Good dog. Faithful friend.

On my message machine at home, there are five messages. The first is from a cousin, telling me how great it was to see me again after all these years, and how nice it was to find that I was the same crazy nut she knew back in the day. She also expressed amazement that I could still dance like that at my age.

The second message is from members of the groom's family, letting me know that I left my suit pants in the bed
